Cybersecurity Training & Phishing Simulations to Secure Your Workforce

Cybersecurity Training is An Essential Pillar of Compliance

All security compliance regulations require security awareness training. That is because without awareness training, inappropriate employee behavior can render much of your security useless. Many security breaches are caused by unintentional employee behavior. Good security requires proper security solutions, plus employee based security focused policies, and processes. Your entire organization must be aware of security threats and how to prevent them. They must be aware of what you expect them to do and how to react if a threat occurs.

Cybersecurity Training Makes You More Secure

Cybersecurity training must include multiple activities to get the desired results.

- 1) Training must be ongoing
- 2) Different levels of employees need different training
- 3) Combining simulated threats with “lessons learned” training provides real world learning
- 4) Instructed course work can effectively teach what the broader threats are and how to react
- 5) Interactive training can be useful to develop team security behavior
- 6) Assessment is important to measure improvement
- 7) Training must be convenient or it will never get done

All Levels of Your Company should be Cyber-trained

Security to be effective requires everyone in your organization from the senior staff to all employees to be trained on security threats and how to respond.

We provide training for all your staff:

- 1) Senior management team - To provide a unified team approach to security.
- 2) Line Management - How to increase awareness and motivate them to maintain a cyber-safe environment
- 3) Employees – To develop awareness of, and how recognize cyber-threats. How to respond when they see a threat whether it be a phishing email or a malicious link, application or computer behavior. We simulate threats, train and then assess they have learned. Management reports show you the results and allow you to assess improvement.
